UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT CONDSIDERING BANK FAILURE

Federal Agents to Ascertain if the Banking Laws Have Been Violated

THOMPSON AFFAIRS IN AIR

Pittsburger Will Reply to Request of Uniontown Creditors' Committee to Extend Aid—Matters Now at a Standstill.

The department of justice through the office of the United States district attorney of Pittsburg is prepared to take up the failure of the First National bank of Uniontown, to ascertain if the national banking laws have been violated by any officials of the institution. Since the bank was placed in the hands of a receiver, both the treasury department and the department of justice have been making exhaustive investigations of the circumstances.

Not only has the treasury department received reports from John H. Strawn, the receiver, but special agents of the department of justice have been active.

That the federal authorities are prepared to act, developed Thursday when a committee of four Uniontown men, said to represent creditors of the bank and of J. V. Thompson, its president, went to Washington, D. C., and held a long conference with Charles Warren, assistant attorney general, who is in charge of the case.

These men, who refused to make known their identity, asked Mr. Warren to postpone the prosecutions until financial affairs in Uniontown became adjusted and the enormous coal holdings in which Mr. Thompson is interested were marketed to the advantage of the creditors of the bank.

What is regarded as the last hope to settle the financial affairs of J. V. Thompson through a creditors' committee is being entertained by the creditors of the former Uniontown banker and coal land operator. On Saturday an officer of a prominent Pittsburg bank will reply to the creditors' committee whether he will agree or decline to serve on a permanent creditors' committee to liquidate for the benefit of the creditors the properties Thompson has agreed to assign to that committee.

VALUABLE ARTICLES ARE REMOVED FROM AUTOMOBILE

Car of W. H. Calvert Pilfered While Owner is Getting Lunch at Elk's Club—Reward Offered.

Several valuable articles were pilfered from the automobile of W. H. Calvert in front of the Elks' club on Thursday evening at about 6 o'clock. Mr. Calvert had left his large automobile standing in front of the club while he was getting lunch at the club. While he was inside someone opened the pockets of the automobile and took various automobile accessories which were stored there. So valuable were they all that Mr. Calvert is now offering a reward of $25 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the guilty persons.

HOUSE BURNS AS PEOPLE LOOK ON

Water Pressure Too Weak In Brownsville For Fighting Flames

LOSS AMOUNTS TO $2,500

Two thousand persons stood on and watched a double frame house and two shanties burn without any effort being made to prevent it. The house is located on a hill on a much higher level than the Brownsville reservoir and the water pressure was ipsufficient to reach the top of the hill. The nearest plug was on Broadway street. Eight hundred feet of hose was attached to this plug and stretched up the hill but the pressure was too weak to surmount the hill.

The fire originated in the shanty of Morgan Turner who had left a coal fire burning in the room and locked the house, going down street early in the evening. The fire quickly spread to the double frame structure on the opposite corner owned by Thomas Halpin. One end of the house was occupied by Ellis Gibson who managed to save but very few articles of furniture. The other end of the house was unoccupied, John Chinn having moved out just a few days ago. The blaze was one of the most spectacular ever seen in Brownsville. Large blazing embers were carried over a wide area but the rain which followed closely prevented the re from spreading. The damage will amount to about $2,800 and is covered by insurance.

The Brownsville Fire department responded quickly to the call but were handicapped too much to do any work.

KOLBOS FOUND GUILTY IN SECOND DEGREE

Murder Verdict Returned Friday Evening—Get Judge To Define Various Degrees—Long Plea For Defendant

Fred Kolbos, one of the six men alleged to have been implicated in the murder of M. Cohn, the Marianna merchant, on the night of May 16, 1915 and the only member of the sextette apprehended, was convicted Thursday night of murder in the second degree. The commonwealth fought hard for a first degree verdict basing their claim upon the fact that the murder of M. Cohen was committed in an attempted robbery and burglary of the Cohen home and store. The defense endeavored to show that the defendant had nothing whatever to do with the death of M. Cohen.

The case went to the jury about 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon. It being a first degree case the jury could not separate until they had brought in their verdict, so when court was adjourned at 4:30 o'clock and no agreement had been reached, Judge Irwin stated he would return after supper to take a verdict, if an agreement was reached. Shortly before 7 o'clock the jury sent a communication to the court in which they asked for further instructions. They requested that the court define to them more fully what constituted murder in the first degree, second degree and third degree. They also asked if they could bring in a verdict under any of these degrees.

Judge Irwin went upon the bench, and Assistant District Attorney Fergus and Attorney Hughes, counsel for Kolbos, were present; the prisoner was brought in and the jury took its place in the box. Judge Irwin first explained to the jury that there was no third degree, but simply first and second degree and manslaughter. The court then went fully into the law defining murder and referred to the Pennsylvania law that fixed the different degrees of murder and defined what they were.

The court told the jury that if under all the evidence they found that the murder of M. Cohen followed an attempted burglary or robbery that it was murder of the first degree. The court further told the jury it could, however, return a verdict under any of the degrees, if the law and evidence as laid down before them, warranted such a verdict. Folowing the court's further instructions the jury was out only a few minutes until an agreement was reached.

It is understood the jury had from the first stood eleven for second degree murder and one for first.

Attorney Howard W. Hughes, who represented the defendant, made a lengthy plea to the jury for Kolbos, speaking from shortly after 8 o'clock until 11 o'clock. He was followed by Assistant District Attorney T. H. W. Fergus for the commonwealth.

SECOND DEGREE MURDER VERDICT IS RETURNED

Costa Markovitch Found Guilty of Killing Milco Marunich After Hard Fought Trial—Trouble Occurs at a Christening.

Costa Markovich, indicted for the murder of Milco Murunich, at Cokeburg, on Sunday, August 1, 1915 was found guilty Thursday evening at the county courts of murder in the second degree. Sentence was suspended until this morning. The jury reached an aggreement after being out about an hour and 45 minutes. The case was taken up on Wednesday and given to the jury about 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The commonwealth had asked for a first degree verdict, while the defense endeavored to show that Markovich did not shoot Milco Marunich until the latter had drawn a knife and was preparing to attack the former.

The trouble occurred at a christening at Cokeburg. There had however been previous trouble between Markovich and Milco Marunich. A quarrel was renewed the day of the christening outside the home where the festivities were being held. A liberal consumption of booze evidently put the men in a fighting mood and a few words started serious trouble. The quarrel that started outside was renewed within the house. The result was the fatal shooting of Milco Marunich.

The case was heard before Judge J. A. McIlvaine. The maximum sentence for second degree murder is 20 years in the penitentiary. The court fixes the minimum.

SECOND BANQUET HELD BY ALPHA PHI BETA

Thanksgiving Social Event Much Enjoyed--Guy Moffit, Esq., Toastmaster—Members of Fraternity Give Talk.

Members of the Alpha Phi Beta fraternity held their second annual Thanksgiving banquet at their club room on Fifth street Thursday evening, and the affair proved to be an event of much social importance. Nineteen were present. The affair was formal.

Luncheon was served by caterers, after which there was an enjoyable time spent with speechmaking and music. Guy Moffit, Esq., presided as toastmaster, and each member present made an address. Singing and Victrola numbers were featured.

Officers of the club are: President, George Gehring; vice president, Zenobe Boudaux; corresponding secretary, Earl W. Taylor; recording secretary, Earl Nicholson; treasurer, C. B. James. The chairman of the general committee arranging the banquet was Earl W. Taylor and the chairman of the refreshment committee, William Vetter.

JAMES H. SHEPPARD DIES AT HIS HOME IN NORTH CHARLEROI

Prominent Business Man And Citizen Succumbs Unexpectedly

HAD LIVED HERE MANY YEARS

Came to Charleroi Early in History To Assume Superintendency of Water Plant—Later Becomes Head of Monongahela City Concern.

James Hamilton Sheppard, aged 58 years for a number of years president and superintendent of the Monongahela City Water company died at his home at North Charleroi this morning at 12:30 o'clock. Mr. Sheppard had been in failing health for some time, but only during the last eight or ten days had he been bedfast, so his death came unexpectedly.

Mr. Sheppard was one of the best known residents of this vicinity. He was born and raised in Pittsburg. After spending some years in Texas, where he owned and conducted a ranch, he returned to Pittsburg to take a position in the city treasurer's office.

From Pittsburg Mr. Sheppard came to Charleroi where he assumed the superintendency of the Charleroi Water company, then a privately owned concern. In 1902 he took charge of the Monongahela City Water company, continuing in this responsible position until about two years ago when he retired. Since then he lived a retired life at his home in Lockview, a part of North Charleroi. He had been in this vicinity for about a score of years.

Mr. Sheppard belonged to an old Pittsburg family. His father was Hamilton Sheppard a widely known civil engineer. Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Alice Connor Sheppard. Two sisters-in-law live at North Charleroi, Mrs. Emma C. McKean and Mrs. J. A. Nutt.

Mr. Sheppard was well connected in the business life of Charleroi and vicinity and was prominent socially.

Funeral services will be conducted at the late home Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock by Rev. John Lyons, rector of St. Mary's Episcopal church. Interment will be private. Friends are asked not to send flowers.

BREACH OF CONTRACT ALLEGED IN SUIT FOR HEAVY DAMAGES

Lot Sale at Donora Involved. With Reported Consideration $3,000—Statement Made.

Beulah Wilson, of Donora has filed suit against Bertha Lustig, of the same place, to recover the sum of $3,000, together with additional damages in the nature of interest from October 5, 1915, for alleged breach of contract. The plaintiff avers the defendant agreed to sell to her a certain lot in Donora, on McKean avenue, 22 by 100 feet. The consideration was $3,000. The plaintiff avers she paid $50 down as hand money. Further, she avers, after investigating the title to the property, she tendered the defendant the balance of the purchase money. She avers the defendant did not accept the same and has refused to carry out her part of the agreement.

TWO TEAMS READY FOR TITLE GAME

Monessen and Charleroi High Evenly Matched For Saturday Contest

AVERAGE WEIGHT 143 POUNDS

Tomorrow two teams very evenly matched will line up on the Charleroi football field at 2:30 o'clock when Monessen and Charleroi high schools will meet in their struggle for the Monongahela valley title. That the game will be a hot one is certain, with both expecting to carry away the victory. Likewise it will be one of the best attended of the entire season. Monessen will come with a contingent of about 500 fans.

With one exception the Charleroi team will appear intact with its regulars. The one exception is Ritchey who made the mistake of playing a week ago with an independent team and now is ineligible to play. Considering he is an exceptionally strong tackle his loss will be keenly felt.

Monessen has filed a list of the following players eligible to participate in the game: Conun, McKinley, Frazier, Williams, Ingram, Boag, Hess, Miller, Preston, Newhouse, (captain,) Lightfoot, Warman, Barry, Ruse, Lewis, Anderson, McQuaide, Eller, Wild.

Football fans will be intensely interested in a genuine football match between two elevens in "The College Orphan." The football game was played by two western elevens, who injected all the vim of their blood-thirsty young souls into their game as the camera clicked away.

"The College Orphan" is a drama with high spots of comedy. It tells the story of a hell-raising young college boy who gets some stiff jolts all around, but who has the makings of a man in him and lands on his feet after some hair-raising adventures.

The Thanksgiving attraction for the Coyle Theatre is Mary Pickford in "A Girl Of Yesterday."

An American who was attached to the embassy at Paris tells of a Parisian journalist who holds a strong objection to the notebook, dear to most of his associates.

This newspaper man wears large white cuffs, and on these he jots down such events as appeal to him, with suggestions for his subsequent articles. At first his laundress was much puzzled by these hieroglyphics, but as the time went on she became able to read them and apparently derived much benefit and pleasure therefrom.

One day the journalist received with his laundered garments a slip of paper on which was written:

"Your last washing was very interesting, but we should be glad to have you give us more war news."—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

Veteran British Sailor.

Baron Fisher, first baron of Kilverstone, who succeeded Prince Louis of Battenburg as first sea lord of the admiralty, held the same position for six years beginning with 1904. He began his navy career in 1854, and six years latter had risen to the post of lieutenant. He is a veteran of the Crimean war, of the China and Egyptian wars, and commanded the Inflexible during the bombardment of Alexandria in 1882. During his long service he has held many high offices, and as a sea fighter he is relentless.

The End of Strikes.

One notable effect of the war in England is reflected in the labor world. Though employment is good, the worker has stopped striking. Thus in November only 8,961 workpeople were reported to the board of trade as being involved in labor disputes, as compared with a total of over 70,000 in November last year.—Pall Mall Gazette.

The Bible in Russia.

The holy synod at Petrograd has been busily engaged in the work of producing popular editions of the Bible. These are being widely distributed by the Orthodox church among soldiers on the battle field as well as to the sick and wounded. Various Russian Red Cross aid associations are including Bibles and Testaments in their parcels of "comforts" for troops at the front, and as the available stock of the British and Foreign Bible society has become exhausted, the holy synod is undertaking the work of printing fresh editions. Should this wave of enthusiasm for the propagation of the Holy Scriptures prove more than a passing phase we may look for a strong revival of intelligent religious interest in Russia.

DODGED SCHOOL, MADE 'PILE'

Country Boy Returns Home After Few Weeks' Absence Driving a Racing Car.

Hutchinson, Kan.—Henry Koehn, a country boy from Galva, McPherson county, was sent to Hutchinson a few weeks ago by his father to get an education in a business college. His father gave him $250 and good advice.

"Now, Henry, be careful," his father advised. "This will be enough money. You can't have extras." Henry came back home, driving a 1915 model racing roadster. He wore a tailor-made suit and a diamond ring. Also he had in his pocket a bank book showing that he had $2,500 or more on deposit in a bank.

A few days after his arrival in Hutchinson with his $250, he fell in with a friend of his father, a gramman. Henry was tempted. He invested his $250 in wheat. Usually it pans out the other way. In Henry's case it didn't. Some say he cleaned up as much as $7,000. Henry is not going to school.

SOME OTHER MAN'S PARCEL

Commuter Made Profitable Exchange, but Probably Man Who Got the Cat Was Peeved.

A man once lived in Montclair, N. J., whose wife had a pet cat. On a wintry day the cat died. So wintry was the day that the cat could not be buried, for the ground was frozen hard.

To get rid of the body the man determined to bring it with him when he went to New York to business. So he wrapped it up neatly in brown paper, and, on getting into his train, put it gently on the hatrack, with the firm intention of forgetting all about it. When he reached the terminus he walked rapidly out of the train, but was barely on the platform when a kindly old gentleman overtook him.

"Your parcel, I think, sir," said he pleasantly, and the man from Montclair thanked him most politely.

All day long the parcel containing the dead cat lay in his office. In the evening he took it home, placing it again in the hatrack and again carefully forgetting it. But again a fellow passenger warned him of his carelessness. Finally he reached home in a not very pleasant frame of mind, and flung the irksome parcel on the kitchen table.

Later on the wife entered the kitchen. The parcel aroused her curiosity, for her husband had said nothing about his failure to bury the cat. She opened it, and [illegible]

NATIVE LIFE IN NEW GUINEA

Magic, Marrying and Murder Seem Closely Connected Practices Among the Innocent Aborigines.

The expedition led last year up the Fly river in British New Guinea by Sir Robert Clarke resulted in the discovery of some amusing customs, for the members of the party fell in with many who had never seen a white man before.

These natives practice magic which they call kusi-kuri—which kills men by suggestion. "No man among them," says Sir Robert, "is supposed to die naturally. The magic man tells him he is going to die, and he promptly does die. It may not be all hypnotism. Supposing a man is told that he is to die from a snake bite, it is not difficult to make certain of his death.

When a man is dead his relatives must get a head so that his spirit will rest in peace. They go out on a murdering expedition and get their head from the nearest tribe they can surprise. It doesn't matter to them whether the head is that of a man, woman or child.

"The girls will not marry a man unless he has a certain number of heads and has killed a man in personal combat. When a new house is built there must be more killing, because the posts of the house have to be sprinkled with human blood. The hideous warfare never ceases, for a tribe which has been attacked must seek revenge.

"The continual fear of surprise attacks is shown in the character of the houses. These were built in the trees. They were rested on scaffold poles fifty to sixty feet from the ground, were beautifully thatched and were chiefly constructed of palm leaves. They were loopholed in the sides for arrows and holes had been left in the floor through which stones could be dropped on the heads of an enemy.

"Large quantities of stones are kept in the houses. These tree dwellers also wear a kind of bamboo cuirass, which is arrow-proof and would be shot-proof. The arrows used are about five feet long and are projected from very powerful bows. I don't think a white man could draw their bows. I have known a man to be pierced through by an arrow from a distance of 200 yards."—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Novelty in Motor Vehicles.

A novel motor-driven racer is the invention of a St. Louis genius, who has given the name of the "unicycle" to the great hoop. Though a couple of small wheels, or rollers, are attached to the side of the queer craft, they merely serve to steady it when it is still and are raised when the device is in motion. The motive power is a gas engine of the rotary type, with three cylinders, and this drives a propeller, five feet in length, at such speed that the wheel travels at a better rate than a mile a minute—74 miles an hour, to be exact. The frame which carries the engine, propeller, driver, and fuel supply is very ingeniously constructed with a set of rollers that revolve against the inner side of the big wheel. In this manner the frame remains upright while the wheel revolves. The latter is of aluminum and has a diameter of 81 inches. Its circumference is protected by a solid rubber tire.

GERM OF SMALLPOX

Doctor Greeley Claims to Have Isolated Microbe.

Believes They Multiply in Mucous Membrane of Nose at Beginning of Disease and Thence Penetrate Blood Vessels.

Dr. Horace Greeley of Brooklyn reports to the Medical Record that he has discovered the long-sought microbe of smallpox. He found "an apparently identical organism" from the vesicles of twenty-five cases of successful vaccination, from a like number of cases of undoubted chickenpox, and from five cases of recognized and undoubted smallpox."

From Doctor Greeley's technical description of this new microbe it may be gathered that it is spherical and from 0.3 to 0.5 microns (of 0.000,17 to 0.0,0234 inch) in diameter. It is in the form of multiplying spores, which just before division assume the shape of a figure 8, with a nucleus in each half. These develop into branching masses with spores at the end of the branches.

Doctor Greeley has grown them in cultures. He believes they multiply on the mucous membranes of the nose at the beginning of the disease, and the spores when shed penetrate the blood vessels and are wafted to all parts of the body, "landing in the skin capillaries, where conditions of lower temperature and more light, perhaps, favor further proliferation. In this connection we should remember how the eruption favors the face and hands."

Doctor Greeley concludes that vaccinia and variola are identical, the difference being that "vaccination produces a local and at most a lymphatic infection, usually stopped at the nearest chain of glands, and represents the inoculation of an organism directly derived from a different species of animal, and therefore probably of low relative virulence, while smallpox is undoubtedly contracted through the respiratory tract and is due to one derived directly from an animal of like species which, as shown, through spore formation, passes into the blood and is thrown to all corners."

Incendiary Bombs Differ From the Ordinary Missile in Character of Their Destructive Power.

Incendiary bombs differ from ordinary explosive bombs in that they are intended not to scatter fragments over a wide area, but to produce sudden and intense heat at a given point, thus starting a fierce conflagration.

W. A. Tilden describes in Nature one of these bombs, a picture of which is reproduced here. His description is as follows:

The bomb, as a rule, is conical, of ten-inch diameter at the base, corded round, and has a metal handle at the apex (see cut). The base is a flat cap onto which a pierced metal funnel is fitted, having the ignition device and handle fitted at the top. The funnel is generally filled with thermit, which upon ignition generates intense heat, and by the time of the concussion has taken the form of molten metal of the extraordinary high temperature of over five thousand degrees Fahrenheit. The molten metal is spread by the concussion. Outside the funnel is a padding of a highly inflammable or resinous material bound on with an inflammable form of rope. The resinous material creates a pungent smoke.

There is generally some melted white phosphorous in the bottom of the cap, which develops nauseous fumes. In some cases celluloid chippings are added and occasionally a small quantity of petrol.

BABY'S SECOND YEAR

DEVELOPMENT THEN DEPENDS ON PROPER FOOD.

The Following Sample Meals for a Healthy Child May Be Given With Perfect Safety—List of "Tastes" to Be Avoided.

(Prepared [illegible] U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

After [illegible] finally weaned from the breast at about one year of age, he too often seems to have a set back. His development does not progress as satisfactorily as during the first year, and the regular gain in weight does not proceed as before.

The trouble usually lies in the baby's failure properly to digest the new foods given to him at this period. In addition to foods suitable for the period between nine and twelve months, after he is a year old he may have a small serving of well-cooked strained cereal twice a day, and will require about one quart of milk during 24 hours.

At fifteen months he may have a little rare beef, or well-cooked chicken or mutton. Meat for a baby should be boiled, roasted or broiled, never fried, and should be given to the baby scraped or finely minced.

The following are sample meals for a day for a healthy child from eighteen months to two years old: (An ounce is two tablespoonfuls.)

7 a. m.—Milk, 8 to 10 ounces; piece of zwieback, toast or dried bread.

9 a. m.—Orange juice, 2 ounces.

10 a. m.—Cereal, 2 tablespoonfuls; cup milk, toast or dry bread.

2 p. m.—Broth, 6 ounces; meat, 1 tablespoonful; vegetable (spinach), 1 tablespoonful; stale bread, 1 piece; baked apple, 1 tablespoonful.

6 p. m.—Cereal, 1½ tablespoonfuls; milk, 6 to 8 ounces; toast or bread.

10 p. m.—Milk, 8 ounces in cup (may be omitted).

The following rules for cooking and preparing certain of these articles may be helpful to mothers:

Toast.—Bread one day old, cut in very thin slices; slices placed on edge in a toast rack in an oven to dry. Leave oven door partly open.

Broth.—Of round steak, one pound; of water, one pint. Put the meat on in cold water and allow it to come to a boil, then lower the flame so that it barely simmers for three or four hours. Remove the meat and add enough water to make up the original amount of liquid; strain through a wire sieve and set aside to cool. When cold the fat is removed in a solid piece, leaving a clear liquid or jelly. Heat a small portion when it is time to feed the baby. Keep the jelly covered and on ice.

Meat.—One tablespoonful. Take meat, round or sirloin steak, scraped with a silver spoon. When you have the desired amount, shape into a pat and broil on a hot, dry spider. When done, add a little salt.

Or, a piece of rare round or sirloin steak, the outer part having been cut away, is scraped or shredded with a knife.

Spinach.—Cook spinach in salted water until tender. Pour cold water over it and drain. Rub through a fine sieve.

Baked Apple.—Apple baked three quarters of an hour. Skin and core removed, two tablespoonfuls of pulp strained through sieve.

Cereal, Flour Preparations.—Cereal preparation, three-quarters of a cupful cooked with one quart of water for three-quarters of an hour in double boiler. Add enough water to keep moist.

Oatmeal.—Have a pint of water boiling in the top of the double boiler; add one-half teaspoonful of salt and drop in gradually one-half cupful of oatmeal flakes, stirring all the while. Cook for three hours and strain through a wire sieve. Pour on it one to two ounces of milk.

It is important, also, to know what not to feed the baby. It is a great temptation to please the baby by giving him "tastes" of various kinds of foods, especially when he is fretful. But this will almost surely result in his harm. Never give him candy, cake, doughnuts, pastry, fresh bread, griddle cakes, sirup or molasses, pork, tough meat of any kind, bananas, over ripe fruits, pickles, tea, coffee, soda water or beer, nor the meats, vegetables and other things appearing on the family table.

Jam-Making Time.

Jam-making time is beginning and is a good plan to always grease the bottom of the preserving pan with a little olive oil before putting in the fruit, for it prevents the jam from burning. Also add a lump of butter about as large as a walnut for every six pounds of fruit, putting it in when the jam comes to the boil after the sugar has been added and let melt.

By the way, one should never let jam boil after the sugar is put in, once it has really melted, or the jam will go thin.

Stewed Prunes.

Take a pound of prunes, wash them carefully and put them in a stew pan with the grated rind of a lemon, a little cinnamon and allspice and two tablespoons of sugar. Cover with cold water and boil until soft. Serve warm or cold.

INTEREST FELT IN APPOINTMENTS

Political interest in Washington county right now is centered on the probable appointments to deputyships and clerkships by the newly elected officials. Various ones have been mentioned for various positions but no definite information has been forthcoming from the officials themselves regarding these appointments. In the registers, the prothonotary's and the clerk of court's offices there will probable be no changes whatsoever. Messrs. Parshall, Lewis and Lockhart hold over in these three offices respectively, having been reelected, and their forces of assistants, it is understood, will be retained.

Two men have been mentioned for assistant district attorney. Woodward M. Taylor, son of the late Judge J. F. Taylor, is most prominently spoken of and is said to have the "inside" chance. He is a former treasurer of the Republican county committee and has the backing and recommendation of many influential Republicans. However Robert R. Burnside, also a young attorney, is being boosted. He was one of the strongest supporters and workers that District Attorney Isaac W. Baum had in his contest for the place. He also was a big booster for Judge R. W. Irwin and Dr. Temple for congress. Many of the friends of these successful candidates are backing his aspirations for the assistant district attorneyship. Mr. Baum so far as can be learned, has made no statement regarding his choice, but says he will make the appointment at the proper time.

It is not considered likely that any changes will be made in the clerical force in the commissioners office at this time. At the present clerks have been asked to be retained and none has received any intimation that he is to be dropped. One vacancy exists in this department, Isaac W. Baum, district attorney-elect, having been solicitor to the commissioners. James P. Eagleson is the most prominently mentioned candidate for Mr. Baum's former position, and he is said to be well thought of by the commissioners.

Should Mr. Eagelson become county solicitor the position he now holds, that of solicitor to the county poor board, will be vacant. No names have been mentioned in connection with this position. The poor board will include two new men the coming term. Whether any changes are contemplated by them cannot be ascertained. It is stated positively that the present County home force will remain intact. Rumors of some changes at the Children's home cannot be verified and it is not likely that anything definite in this department will be known until the new board organizes.

Rumors of sweeping changes in the sheriff's office are rife. It was said that an entirely new set of deputies and assistants was contemplated by Sheriff Wickerham, with the exception of the retention of Deputy George Hornbake. Hornbake was a candidate for the sheriff nomination, but his friends assert that he made no great fight on Wickerham and that inasmuch as the incoming sheriff will require at least one experienced man, Hornbake is likely to be retained as a deputy—Washington Observer.

In speaking of the foregoing article Sheriff-elect Wickerham, the sheriff-elect stated that he had made no selections whatever thus far and no person has nay authority to even guess who his appointees will be. He will make this announcement at the proper time.

Family Portraits.

There is a beautiful house on Long Island that the owners wished to lease for the summer. Two parvenus with social ambition thought this residence might be the means of launching them into local society, so they went to look it over. Upon entering the boudoir of a young woman member of the family, their eyes fell upon a beautiful Madonna on the wall. They also observed a Beatrice. One of the party said, "Well, if we do take the house, will you please remove the family portraits?"—Judge.

Lost Curls Are Found.

In a picture show at a Madison street theater one evening a little girl and her mother were seated near me. A comic picture was on, showing a lady "making up" with paint, powder, false hair, etc. The climax came when the interested little girl cried out: "Oh, mamma, there's the curls you lost at Aunt Bell's party. Where do you 'spose she found 'em?"—Chicago Tribune.

Doctors and Drugs.

A large number of physicians are themselves addicted to the use of morphine. This is no wonder, considering the strenuous life they lead, and the fact that they are continually handling the drug. Conscientious physicians have for some time past refused to administer it, but then, what was the use, while there were so many others willing to do so?

Arsenic Not Fatal to Birds.

Investigations by government scientists show that the spraying of trees with preparations of arsenic to eliminate the gypsy moth is not necessarily fatal to birds. The scarcity of birds in regions where much spraying is done can be explained by the fact that the spraying diminishes the supply of insect food and the birds are obliged to seek it elsewhere.

Use Zinc as Nuggets.

A shoveler in one of the Joplin zinc mines who had seen in the movies how the gold miners bought what they needed with gold nuggets, recently laid a small chunk of zinc ore on a bar counter and called for a beer. The bartender served the drink to him and laid down 20 cents in change, and of course the crowd laughed and cheered.

Such is the spirit of the Joplin zinc boom, with crude zinc ore now worth seven cents a pound, which is about 50 per cent higher than the refined product spelter has averaged for many years.—Wall Street Journal.

A Philosopher's Nightcap.

Many years ago I was in a northern country house in which Herbert Spencer was staying. At that time he suffered from sleeplessness, and one night on going to bed he said to me: "I am about to drink some hot brandy and water in order to restore the periodicity of my somniferous functions."—London Spectator.

SONGBIRDS OF GREAT VALUE

Rarest Varieties Command Large Sums When They Are Offered for Sale to Fanciers.

The recent international bird show has brought out some interesting facts and figures regarding the value of songbirds. There are nearly one hundred classes of songbirds. That they can go Norwich or Yorkshire variegated, buff or pied, clear crested, created, self or any other variety, is due to the avenues and bird fanciers are marveling at the variety of chirping little creatures whose feathers are every conceivable shade of yellow.

One marvels also at the variety of birds that could be kept as pets. Finches, linnets redpoles, tomtits, robins, wrens, stonechats, babblers and long tailed, short tailed wag-tailed and crested varieties of all of them in every size, from the minute humming bird to the plump scarlet cockatoo, all vie for that popularity which up to the present has been the monopoly of the canary.

And these little birds are all quite cheap. A few dollars will buy most of them, but on the other hand $2,500 would be asked for a gorgeous crimson bird of paradise, or $5,000 for the canary-bullfinch "White Rose," the most expensive songbird in the world.

INTRODUCE A NOVEL SPORT

Society Girls Sit in Chairs and Cast Their Hooks for Goldfish in Hotel Fountain.

A cane, a piece of thread and a bent pin, together with bread crumbs for bait, form the basis of a novel indoor sport introduced at an exclusive Pasadena hotel by two fun-loving society girls. The goldfish in the fountain which graces the big lobby of the hotel form the prey, although to date there have been no serious casualties among the finny beauties.

To sit comfortably in a big Morris chair in the lobby of a palatial hotel and at the same time enjoy all the delights dear to the followers of Izaak Walton is quite a novelty, declare the girls, who make a great sport of luring the fish to near-capture.

"Goldfish are fun to angle for," says Miss Marion Landers, who, with Miss Edna Walsh, introduced the odd sport. "We don't care to eat them, though, so any we catch we put back. It's great fun, don't you think?"

It certainly is, declare the prominent eastern guests, who were interested spectators of the novel fishing.

The Old and the New.

Inventions have a remarkable knack of repeating themselves. Among the more interesting patents for 1914 is a specification for a wheelless motor car, propulsion being by means of skids, which are alternately lowered and raised. In the early days of locomotive history many inventors did not believe that sufficient adhesion was to be attained by a smooth wheel operating on a smooth rail, and weird and wonderful were the devices for overcoming this supposed defect. One ingenious engineer went so far as to design a contrivance in which jointed metal bars worked up and down on the rails after the fashion of a horse's legs, and there seems to be a certain affinity between this device and the motor car referred to above.

"BARBARIANS STILL."

No better evidence that "we are barbarians still" and the "civilization has only sharpened our claws" could be offered than that of the third degree torture admitted to have been employed [illegible] to extort a confession from a prisoner charged with murder. Placing a strap around the victim's neck, the story goes, this officer, aided by another, threatened hanging—we might call it lynching—if the prisoner did not admit he had shot down a man in cold blood.

It is awful to contemplate such a thing. The officer, we are told pulled the strap over a rafter in a barn until the unwilling prisoner's feet barely touched the floor. Apparently every effort was made to convince the man that he was standing on the brink of eternity and that he would be toppled over if his lips remained sealed.

It is time to put a stop to this sort of barbarianism. Not alone is this county detective guilty of such abominable, revolting and reprehensible practice of third degree torture. There are others, and among them as we learn once in awhile might very conveniently be named certain town or city police.

Third degree torture is an instrument that defeats justice. It brings nothing, unless a gurgled story frequently falsified in a last frantic effort of the victim to escape his tormentors. It is at its worst severe enough in its shock to bring death to a weakened being and at its best, a living hell to the tortured. The value of any confession so gained is lost. Sympathy for the prisoner is certain to be general when the searchlight of publicity is turned on such acts. No officer of intelligence or uprightness will demean himself by its use, for employing such tactics indicates a lack of skill in detective work, an entire absence of brilliancy in legal practices and questionable mentality.

Carbolic acid suicides are to be things of the past because carbolic acid is either unobtainable or else so high priced as to make it almost prohibitive. Here at last seems a blessing from the war abroad. But read farther along and you will discover that the monstrous conflagration has caused a shortage in dye stuff, a shortage in meats, a shortage in hides and a shortage in numerous other essentials. Then the carbolic acid blessing fades, just like our bank accounts. The shortage in dyes means higher priced clothing, the shortage in meats means higher priced table necessities, the shortage in hides means higher priced shoes, and other shortages mean other things, all forcing us to the same ultimate conclusion, that the cost of living has advanced and is advancing enormously. The war has driven business in one direction and created prosperous conditions for us. It probably has saved us from panic, but it has also had other notable results.

It doesn't make you feel any kindlier toward the world in general if after being forced to rush for an interurban car, you find it just pulling away from your stop, and therefore miss us. Neither does it help matters any to realize by a glance at your watch that the car has left the stop two or three minutes before it is and steel industry of the country is quently happens. Most all of us are in favor of quick service but with quick service want dependable schedules.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

She was an ardent suffragette and was arguing with her father about the ballot for women.

"Well, what are you suffragists going to do?" inquired the father.

"We are going to sweep the country," she replied proudly.

"Well, do not despise small beginnings, my dear. Suppose you start with the dining room."

Some time ago a little youngster from the city went out to visit his uncle's farm and saw many sights of a rural nature for the first time. Among the things that particularly impressed him were several haystacks.

"Say, Uncle," remarks the youngster, after studying the stacks for some time, "what is all that stuff over there?"

"That is hay, Jimmy," answered the uncle with an indulgent smile. "Didn't you ever see——"

"Say, Uncle," scornfully interjected the city boy, "don't try to josh me! Don't you suppose I know that hay don't grow in lumps like that?"

Every woman knows that, while the manager may be drawing the pay, her husband is doing all the work.

It often happens that a man will avoid temptation only to hook up with something just as good.

It is a mighty lucky thing for the girls that their faces do not look anything like their elbows.

Many a man who has taken a chance would give a whole lot for a chance to put it back.

Forgetting to mail the letter your wife gave you isn't the most serious mistake in life. Forgetting to burn the letter some other woman sent you is the most serious mistake.

When a man starts to tell you how honest and upright he is keep both hands on your money and both eyes on the other man's hands.

A man likes to give a party because he can invite his friends and make them happy. A woman likes to give a party so she can make her enemies unhappy by not inviting them.

Every now and then you see where some man is suing some other man because his wife's affection has been alienated. A wife's affection is worth $100,000,000,000 if it can't be alienated by another man, but if it can be alienated by another man it isn't worth a Mexican penny.

Most men would be more polite to their wives only they know that if they were their wives would become suspicions.

It is all right to have an aim in life, but a lot of the bright young men spend so much time in aiming that the game always gets away.

WEAK AND TIRED WOMEN

Charleroi women who are weak, run-down and suffer from the consequent effects of such a condition, will be interested in Mrs. Odell's letter. She says:

"I am a farmer's wife and was all run-down, weak, tired and suffered from indigestion and sometimes it seemed as though I could not keep around and do my housework. I had taken many medicines without benefit. One day I saw Vinol advertised and made up my mind to try it. I have taken four bottles and have gained seven pounds in weight am much stronger and feel many years younger than before." Sarah Odell, Lockport, N. Y.

The reason Vinol builds up weak, run-down women so quickly is because it contains a delicious combination of the three most successful tonics, peptonate of iron to enrich and revitalize the blood, the strength-creating, body-building elements of fresh cods' livers without oil, and beef peptone.

We want to say to every weak, run-down, overworked woman in Charleroi that we will return your money if Vinol fails to help you as it did Mrs. Odell. Piper's Pharmacy, Charleroi, Pa.

AMONG THE THEATRES

PALACE—CHARLEROI

High class vaudeville was featured at the Palace theatre this week, changing as usual mid-week. The first part was characterized by three extraordinary acts. The Bernard Trio appeared with their singing and dancing act. Mabel and Donald Garrison, who were Palace theatre singers about four years ago entertained with songs. Harry Dare won applause with his musical monologue. The latter part of this week Sheridan and Williams with an act of high class singing, Gordon and Clifford, singers and dancers and Billy Adams, the "happy chappy" of vaudeville with a comedy singing act are being featured. All are acts that might truly be termed big-time acts. Among the motion picture features of this week were "Nell of the Hall," with Lottie Briscoe and Arthur Johnson and "The Net of Deceit," a Broadway feature.

MAJESTIC—CHARLEROI

The first show this week at the Majestic theatre was a big one, with Tom Ferris being featured in the big Monday production of "Pursuing Shadow," a five part film. On Tuesday Bryant Washborne, supported by Edna Mayo appeared in "Blindness of Virtue," in six reels. Geraldine O'Brien was the star of the Wednesday feature, "His Wife," an unusual picture and a vividly presented story. It was a Mutual presentation in five reels. If it were possible to pick out the most entertaining of the entire lot, probably Thursday night's production was the best, the subject treated being "The Man Who Could Not Beat God." This was a Blue Ribbon film, with Maurice Costello in the leading role. At the Majestic on Saturday will be presented a show of much merit. An orchestra is playing nightly.

COYLE—CHARLEROI.

The famous actor in the legitimate drama and in musical comedy, Donald Brain was seen this week in the Paramount production on Tuesday of "The Voice in the Fog," appearing in the cast with a starring partner, Adda Gleason. This Tuesday production following a great Monday picture "The Family Stain," with Frederick Perry and Edith Hallor. Wednesday, Ethel Barrymore and Percy G. Standing appeared in the big Metro production "The Final Judgment," and on Thursday the film, "The Fatal Card," a Paramount picture with Hazel Dawn and John Mason in the featuring roles was presented. Manager Coyle is announcing for his Saturday show one of the largest features of the entire week, that of "The Campbells are Coming," a Broadway five part picture.

STAR—CHARLEROI

At the Star this week every night was a feature night under the Star plan of short programs. Two reels was the longest of any film. On Monday night "Leap for Life" was a charming production in two reels, holding interest with "Spirit of Adventure" and "Massive Moose Memorial." Tuesday's two part production was "Ace of Heart," a Domino film. Other good pictures were "Turning Point" and "Green Apples." On Wednesday "Child of the Surf" a Majestic two reel thriller was a feature and others of great interest were "Hidden Chance," a Reliance picture and "Making Matters Worse." One of the best programs of the week was that of Thursday when the chief production was "The Father." Other pictures were the Mutual weekly No. 35, and "A Bully Affair."

ALVIN—PITTSBURG.

George V. Hobart's modern morality play of today, "Experience," comes to the Alvin Theatre for a week's engagement commencing Monday, November 22, with matinees Wednesday, Thursday (Thanksgiving Day) and Saturday. This sensational success tells the story of the temptation confronting youth when he goes out into the world. His experiences are shown in 10 scenes which are of dramatic sentimental and amusing nature. The experiences are such as might happen to almost any young man in search of fame and fortune and include Youth's meeting with Pleasure on "The Street of Vacillation," and becoming so enamored with Pleasure's charms that Youth refuses to receive Opportunity's message.

From "The Street of Remorse" Youth falls to the very depths of degradation in "The House of Lost Souls," an awful novel of dope fiends and seeks with Crime Delusion and Habit to forget his troubles in the treacherous living cocaine. But on the "Street of Forgotten Days" Youth is halted by hearing the magnificent hymn "Lead Knigdly Light" sung in a church he is passing and he leaves Crime and through Love and Hope finds his regeneration.

The opening night's performance will be for the benefit of Hospital Field Ambulance.

NEW DAVIS—PITTSBURG

In the New Davis Theatre Thanksgiving week, beginning next Monday matinees November 22, Messrs Harry Davis and John P. Harris will serve up a program of Keith quality vaudeville in which there will be examples of the finest artistry from every angle of the amusement profession. George East and Company, assisted by the McGinniss Brothers, are carded for original and cycling dance creations in which they will feature "The Dance of the Carnival" and "The Futurist Whirl." T. Roy Barnes and Bessie Crawford, who were with Lina Abarbanell in "The Red Canary," were featured in the New York Wintergarden and starred in "See My Lawyer," will offer a breezy comedy skit called "A Package of Smiles." A touching bit of tabloid drama called "The Little Stranger," will be played by a company of which Paul Dulzell is star. Josie Heather, an English comedienne of the music halls, will be assisted by William Casey, Jr., and Bobbie Heather, in a potpourri of songs and dances with an exchange of repartee. J. Francis Dooley and Corinne Sayles will present their original melange of fun and songs—a sort of admixture of "nut" comedy and lyrical melody. The Five Statues in replica of marble figures will perform acrobatic acts with skill and refinement. Paul Levan and Dobbs in turns, twists and falls, will realize the maximum of knock-about humor, while various other players in addition to moving pictures, round out a program of even balance and high merit.

BABY'S DANGER PERIOD

ESPECIAL CARE REQUIRED FROM MAY TO OCTOBER.

Thoughtful Mother May Do Much to Protect Infant From Summer Illness—Simple Rules That Must Be Observed.

Prepared by the Children's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor.

From May to October the baby must be guarded with special care, if he is to escape the dangers which lurk about him in the hot days of summer.

It is estimated that of the many thousands of babies who die every summer, principally in July and August, half might have been saved, since summer diarrhea may often be prevented with suitable care.

It is caused, in a large number of cases, by mistakes in the method of feeding, or by using impure milk, or other unsuitable dangerous foods, or by overheating the baby with too much clothing.

The careful and thoughtful mother may do much, therefore, to protect her baby from this illness, by avoiding, as far as possible, its various causes. Throughout this series of articles, mothers have been urged to observe certain simple rules for the health of the baby in summer. These rules require:

1. That the baby shall be fed on proper food in proper quantities at proper intervals.

2. That he shall have no food between meals, but shall have plenty of pure, cool drinking water.

3. That he shall be kept as cool as possible by fresh air, plenty of baths, and very little clothing.

4. That he shall be protected from flies and mosquitoes.

If these rules are faithfully carried out many cases of summer diarrhea will be prevented. If, however, the disease appears, the city mother should at once consult her doctor, or, if she has no physician, take her baby to the nearest infant welfare station, where competent physicians will advise her with regard to the care of the baby and trained nurses will assist her in carrying out his directions. It is of great importance to take the disease in its first stages, as a mild form of the disease readily becomes a serious one.

In the country, where it is very difficult to get the advice of a doctor, the mother has a harder problem. Because she is out of the range of infant welfare stations, hospitals, and often of physicians as well, it is most important to prevent every attack of illness possible by careful attention to the baby's food and general care, as already advised in these articles.

If the baby is still at the breast, one or two nursings should be omitted, and only pure, cool water given in its place. Meanwhile the mother's breasts should be pumped at each usual nursing time to prevent their drying up.

Bottle-fed babies are much more likely to be the victims of summer diarrhea. When this happens, the bottle should be omitted for eight, twelve or twenty-four hours, according to the severity of the attack. Do not, however, keep food from the baby longer than twenty-four hours, except on the advice of a physician. When the bottle is resumed, the food should be much weaker than before: at least, half of the milk previously given should be substituted by water. The milk should be skimmed, and sugar should be omitted. The return to the former feeding should be made gradually, adding a little more milk each day, and beginning to add sugar. The more severe the attack has been, the more slowly should changes be made.

If the baby is on "mixed" feeding, that is, partly breast and partly bottle-fed, the bottle feedings should be omitted if diarrhea appears, and the breast given once in four or five hours with nothing but drinking water between meals.

The Children's Bureau publishes a pamphlet called "Infant Care," which is sent free of charge to anyone sending a request to the Chief of the Children's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor, Washington. This pamphlet contains some simple directions for the care of the babies in summer which may help the mother to prevent summer disturbances and other ailments of infancy.

Had Lung Trouble and Expected to Die

The many recoveries brought about by Eckman's Alterative are attracting wide attention. Read about this case:—

38 B St., Keyser, W. Va.

"Gentlemen:—I was taken sick in November, 1906. I grew steadily worse. Had two consultations. The verdict was the fever had affected my lungs and that my case was hopeless; only gave me two months to live. My physician had tried most all kinds of treatment and none did me any good, so he asked my husband if he objected to him trying a proprietary medicine. I began your Alterative. I was in bed from November 30, 1906, until February 25, 1907, and was thought dying several times. Today I am healthier and stronger than ever." (Abbreviated.)

MRS. JUDSON PROFITED

WHEN HER LIEGE LORD APPLIED SHELLAC TO THE STAIRS.

Further Proof, if Any Was Needed, That Man as a Help at House-Cleaning Time Has His Distinct Limitations.

Mr. Judson laid aside his evening paper and looked about the neat living room. "House cleaning's about over isn't it, Martha?" he asked

"Almost," responded his wife; "there's the kitchen to clean, and the cellar to be whitewashed, and the front stairs ought to be freshened up. What would you use on them, William?"

"Shellac," said Mr. Judson, with prompt interest; "that will dry quickly, and as we have no back stairs, that's an important point I'll bring home the stuff tomorrow night, and do it before I go to bed You can go up first, and stay, so that the stairs won't have to be used, and by morning they'll be as good as new."

Accordingly, the next evening, Mr Judson sent his wife off to bed at ten promptly, although he did not leave his reading until silence reigned upstairs. Then he donned a big apron and got out his brushes and shellac

"Just as well to wait until there's no one round to make suggestions," he mused; "women never understand how much better a man can work by himself!"

Mr. Judson was a deliberate and conscientious worker, slighting no detail, and in an hour or so the flight of stairs glistened in all its original freshness Mr Judson surveyed it proudly from the lower hall. Then his jaw dropped.

"Thunder!" he muttered, disgustedly. "I ought to have begun at the bottom and worked up!"

But out of a momentary mental chaos he clutched at the important fact. He must go up backward, and as he went, varnish over each foot mark on the stair below. Mr. Judson was portly and his sense of humor was not keen. As he backed cautiously up the sticky stairs at midnight, can and brush in hand, stooping to touch up each abandoned step, with due regard to his blue gingham draperies, he began to breathe hard; but at last he reached the top, and looking down, congratulated himself that no one need know of his blunder. How beautifully the surface shone!

Then it slowly penetrated his consciousness that one reason for the pleasing illumination was the gas in the lower hall, the two burners of which had been turned high to light his earlier labors. Mr. Judson hesitated, thought of the gas bill, remembered that the front door was not locked, and restrained himself with a sternness of self-control that jarred his nerve centers. There was only one thing to do, and he descended—on tiptoes. He left his large, sticky slippers at the foot of the stairs, to save the hall carpet, locked the front door, turned out the gas, resumed his slippers, and began his second recessional, obliterating each footstep by the uncertain light of the upper-hall gas. It was not a quick job; the distance to a celebrated spot in Ireland seemed to Mr. Judson insignificant in comparison, although he made no audible comment until he stepped on his blue gingham tail and sat down unexpectedly on the top step. Then, forgetting caution, he expressed himself in loud and irritated tones.

A substantial vision in pink flannelette appeared at the bedroom door behind him; but realizing that barometric pressure was high, it retired as silently as it had come, with superb wifely tact, before he had time to detach himself from the step and apply the final brushwork to his masterpiece.

At breakfast Mrs. Judson's praise was unstinted, although she casually deplored the traces of varnish on the apron and slippers.

"Yes," Mr. Judson admitted, without looking up from the morning paper, "I'm afraid I did spill a little. By the way, Martha, isn't it about time for you to think of a new hat?"—Youth's Companion.

Clipped His Locks.

Recently William Melvin, or "Medicine Bill," as he was known in the middle West, had to have his hair cut before beginning an indeterminate sentence at the Ohio penitentiary after a conviction under the Mann white slave act. Melvin cried as the prison barber snipped his locks, which hung down to his shoulders

"I've been eighteen years raising that crop of hair," was his reason for weeping

But a Sing Sing convict a few years ago established a hair record that beat this. His blond locks reached fully to his waist line. He had never had his hair cut since his birth. He expressed no regret over the loss of his locks, being oddly confident that he could grow another stock of hair in short order.

Breast of Lamb.

About two and one-half pounds of breast of lamb boiled tender in salted water; takes about two hours or a little longer to cook. Have what vegetables you like and thicken the broth for gravy If there should be enough meat left, chop and season and mold in a small, deep dish and put a weight on it. It will cut in nice thin slices for tea.

SOME WILL DISBELIEVE THIS

That Fair Girl Graduate Neglected Familiar Phrase Is Too Much to Take on Faith.

Confronted by eager friends and relatives in the auditorium the fair young girl graduate sallied forth to the center of the platform to deliver her commencement peroration. Hercule expected her to strew the wild flowers of rhetoric around the building with a lavish hand and they were not disappointed Beginning almost in the Garden of Eden she brilliantly traced the great events of history and endeavored to point the lesson that each happening should teach She dragged poor Julius Caesar from his mausoleum and ghoulishly lugged him across the Rubicon again, helped Horatio make good his long suit at the bridge and even endeavored to portray where Napoleon Bonaparte had erred.

Coming down the home stretch the talented young lady breezed along under wraps.

"Now, my classmates," she said in conclusion "we have reached the parting of the ways. We must now show the stuff of which we are made and get out in the world and hustle. Let us put forth all our energies to make our efforts a success, thereby repaying our proud forbears for the many sacrifices they have made that we might be scientifically equipped for the herculean struggle on which we must embark."

With these fitting words, the fair graduate brought her valedictory to a close. And never once did she proclaim to an unsuspecting public that, "Beyond the Alps lies Italy."—New York World.

NOTED FOR SMALL THINGS

Great Men Not Always Held in Memory on Account of Deeds of Consequence.

It is said that the duke of Wellington once "chaffed" Lord Brougham as a man who at one time bade fair to go down to future ages as a famous advocate of law reform and popular education, but who, after all, would owe his renown in the name of the vehicle which had received his name.

Brougham retorted by saying to the duke that his name, which promised to descend to after-times as the hero of a hundred battles and the liberator of Europe, was to survive as the appellation of a certain kind of boots. The story is a good one, whether true or mythical, and suggests to us some of the strange ways in which men become famous.

One person acquires celebrity by his giant intellect, as Webster or Calhoun; another, by his dwarf stature, as Count Borowalski, or Tom Thumb.

There are great men who are known to fame hardly less by their physical or moral eccentricities than by their intellectual might. Such was the case with Lord Brougham, who was long associated in men's minds with the queer twist of his nose, on which Punch hung so many conceits; and Lord Peterborough, who, walking from the market with a fowl under one arm and a cabbage under the other, quite threw into the shade Lord Peterborough, the hero of Almanza.

The same was the case with the great duke of Marlborough, whose haggling with the Bath chairmen and acts of petty avarice were talked of long after the conqueror at Blenheim and Malplaquet was forgotten.

The pulse in women is from one to five beats higher than in men.

Because his wife moved 39 times in 10 years, E. T. Turner of Camden, N. J., is seeking for a divorce.

Four policewomen have been appointed in Pittsburgh to censor all magazines sold in that city.

For conspicuous bravery in the performance of duty, Mrs. Isabella N Goodwin, a police matron, has been placed in the honor regiment of the New York police force.

Miss Rose Pitonoff of Dorchester, Mass., was the first swimmer of either sex to cover the 12 miles between Charlestown bridge and Boston, although many famous home and foreign watermen had previously attempted the feat.

Women are now being employed in all the large factories in England where munitions are manufactured.

A woman must be between the age of thirty and forty to be eligible to appointment on the Chicago police force.

Miss A. Florence Yerger, Philadelphia's most successful woman lawyer, has more business than she can handle herself and has been compelled to open three offices in different parts of the city.

Since the dominion of Canada was created forty-one years ago there have been only 442 divorces granted, while in the United States in the same period of time the courts have dissolved 1,274,341 marriages.

MUCH DEPENDS ON COOKING

Use Quantities of Water in Preparing Strong-Flavored Vegetables for the Table.

The many people who believe they cannot eat cabbage, cauliflower, onions and turnips without suffering from indigestion, and the many others who do not like these strong-flavored vegetables, which are very valuable in the diet, should change their method of cooking them suggests Miss Oberlin of Columbus Ag. Cultural college.

Use a large quantity of water in proportion to the quantity of vegetables to be cooked. To prepare cabbage, cut the cabbage not too fine with a knife. Have two quarts of slightly salted water boiling rapidly, add one quart of coarsely cut cabbage. Boil, uncovered, until the cabbage is tender when tried with a fork. Drain at once and add one cupful of medium white sauce. The mixture may then be placed in a well buttered baking dish, covered with buttered crumbs, and browned in a moderate oven.

Onions, cauliflower and turnips may be prepared in the same way. Small onions should be boiled whole, larger ones cut in quarters, cauliflower may be left in the head or broken into smaller pieces; and turnips should be cut in cubes.

The advantage of this method of cooking are: The vegetable stays white or pale green in color, the odor in the house is not disagreeable, the flavor is much better, and the food more easily digested than when a covered kettle or fireless cooker is used.

ECONOMY IN SIRUP MAKING

That Made From Cider and Ginger Is Pure and Simple—Imitation Maple Sirup.

The greatest of sugar economies is the making of sirups pure and simple. Cider sirup, for example, is an excellent relish for any meal, also a more than fair sauce for puddings, rolypolys and so on.

To make it, bruise well three full races of ginger, taking care the root is not worm-eaten. Boil the ginger ten minutes in half a gallon of cider and let stand overnight—or twelve hours at least. Strain. Add five pounds of sugar—more if you like a very rich sirup. Simmer gently, skimming clean for half an hour. Cool and keep in glass or clean stoneware.

Water, instead of cider, makes an excellent sirup. Use six pounds of sugar to the half gallon. Skim clean and cook as thick as desired. Soft sugar, the coffee grade, so called makes excellent sirup. If the almost black Porto Rico sugar is to be had it makes a sirup that furnishes a close approach to maple sirup—so close as to warrant the suspicion that it is the first cause of a good deal that passes for maple.

Tuna Loaf.

To one can of tuna fish add two well-beaten eggs, one teaspoonful of lemon juice, one teaspoonful of chopped parsley, one teaspoonful of chopped green peppers, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt and one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper. Mold into loaf and bake in moderate oven one-half hour. Garnish with parsley and sliced stuffed olives. Serve lot with the following sauce: Melt two teaspoonfuls of butter and add two teaspoonfuls of flour, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of paprika. When smooth add gradually one cupful of hot water. When thoroughly cooked add two tablespoonfuls of butter, a little at a time. Beat until thoroughly mixed and add two hard-cooked eggs chopped fine. Serve this very hot on the tuna loaf.

Silence Cloth.

Those of us who still cling to table cloths instead of polished wood have often wondered at the exasperating qualities of the Canton flannel silence cloth. Almost every hot dish placed over it causes it to stick closer than a brother to the polished table and to leave white fuzzy rings on the wood. Instead, make a silence cloth out of cheesecloth or other washable material, with several layers of paper between the two folds. Overcast the edges and knot here and there as in a quilt.—Mother's Magazine.

Apple Tea Cake.

One pint flour, one-half teaspoonful salt, three teaspoonfuls baking powder, few grains cinnamon, two tablespoonfuls sugar, one tablespoonful butter, one egg, scant cupful of milk, five apples; mix and sift dry ingredients, work in butter, add milk gradually and egg well beaten, spread in well buttered baking pan; cut apples in eighths or sixteenths and stick in dough, sprinkle sugar and cinnamon over top, serve with butter.

Convenient Clothespin Bag.

This bag is made from a square bag just wide enough to have a clothes hanger sewed to the top. A slit is made down the middle to within four inches of each end, so that the pins may be put in and taken out easily. The advantage of this bag is that it can be hooked on the line and slid along as the clothes are hung up.

Strawberry Muffins.

One pint flour, two small teaspoonfuls baking powder, one-half cupful sugar, little salt sifted together. Add to one beaten egg and one cupful milk. Mix well and add one cupful mashed strawberries and two tablespoonfuls melted butter. Bake in muffin tins in quick oven.

TEACHER TRAINING GRADUATES ARE GIVEN THEIR DIPLOMAS

Teacher training graduation exercises were held at the Roscoe Presbyterian church Thursday evening, when a class of 10 received diplomas. Prof. H. H. Saylor of Roscoe was in charge of the exercises and Rev. Jno. R. Burson of Charleroi made the address. An orchestra rendered musical numbers. Miss Myrtle Ryland a teacher in the Charleroi schools was the soloist for the occasion.

ADDITION TO WAR'S HORRORS

American Claims to Have Invented a Shell Capable of Scattering Molten Steel.

A new type of projectile which would scatter a white-hot mixture of molten steel over the object of attack and at the same time permeate the atmosphere with a deadly gas, which would make it impossible for fire fighters to approach, has been invented by John Hays Hammond, Jr., according to a statement made by him. This new missile, he says, may soon appear in the European war.

The missile is designed for use in siege guns, as an aid in destroying towns and dirigible balloons. Mr. Hammond explained that the projectile carried an aluminothermic mixture which, five seconds after the projectile was discharged, would turn the steel inside to a white-hot mixture at a temperate of 5,400 degrees Fahrenheit. When the projectile hits the target, the inventor said, it explodes, its white-hot contents setting fire to whatever inflammable material it strikes. To avoid the possibility of quenching the flames, Mr. Hammond said he had equipped the projectile with a chamber filled with hydrocyanic acid, the fumes of which are deadly.

The inventor is a son of the famous engineer, John Hays Hammond. He invented wireless control of submarine torpedoes.

Army Nurse's Bravery.

Mlle. Korkeenah, a Russian Sister of Mercy, has been decorated by the Russian government for bravery. She was working in a Russian field hospital in the neighborhood of Soldau, East Prussia. When the Germans attacked the position of the Russian troops Nurse Korkeenah remained all alone in the hospital tending the wounds of private soldiers and officers. Although the hospital was already in the center of the sphere of the enemy's fire, Mlle. Korkeenah boldly came outside, procured a number of horses, harnessed them, found several vehicles, and, with the aid of the slightly wounded men, lifted the patients into the vehicles and drove them away to a place of safety.

And That Spoiled It.

Douglas Fairbanks went to a social affair the other night and an admiring woman cornered him.

"Oh, Mr. Fairbanks," she said, "your acting is wonderful."

"Thank you," he replied.

"It's marvelous how you bring out the different emotions."

"I'm glad you appreciate my work."

"Yes, indeed, you are a great actor."

"You are indeed complimentary."

"And do you know," the woman rattled on, "I have a little five-year-old son at home who acts exactly like you do."

Child Research Work.

Miss Elizabeth Moore of St. Louis, who is a member of the children's bureau department of the government, has returned to Saginaw, Mich., to continue her investigations in regard to the women of the lumber camps and health of the children. Miss Julia Lathrop, head of the children's bureau, ordered Miss Moore to Indianapolis shortly after the holidays to assist in making preparations for a child welfare exhibition to be given in that city. Miss Moore was there ten days before returning to her regular work.

Studies American Methods.

A journey of 40,000 miles, at an expense of $5,000, for the purpose of studying methods of agriculture, will be the record of Professor S. McIntosh, commissioner of irrigation for South Australia, when he has returned to his home. He has passed two weeks in Chicago conferring with other irrigation leaders, and incidentally buying $100,000 worth of machinery.

His Intent.

"See how that dog is licking your hand."

"I suppose he wants to stamp me with his approval."
